

Ever since I was little, I loved to draw, paint, color and anything that involved creativity. In High School, instead of trying out for the plays, I designed and painted the backdrops. My mother encouraged me to pursue a career in art. So off I went to DuCret School of the Arts. I studied with leading designers and artists that had been already successful in their career. One teacher in particular, was under the instruction of Norman Rockwell in the past sharing what he learned from him to us. After graduating, I worked for a leading paper company designing templates and then later moved on to SilverLine Windows working my way up as a Senior Designer. A few years later I was approached by Ideal Window who was in need of a stronger marketing department. Exciting! Yes! And now here we are ten years later.

After setting up an in-house design and marketing department, which led me to many years of success, I decided that I want a career as an art director working with other designers. I have learned that working in a team is important for creative inspiration. Having a platform to bounce ideas off with other workers provides a foundation from which I can push myself - and others - to our greatest potential.

On a more personal note, I'm a proud mother of two of the best kids out there. My son Connor, 6 and my daughter Abigail, 4. I'm also a mother of two crazy Labrador retrievers and the lucky wife to my husband Keith. My children keep me going and always add inspiration to my life each day. I feel lucky to be a mother and able to move forward in my career doing what I do best - DESIGN!
